They eat leaves

- Monita: But, Bekantans sometimes go down to the forest floor. They move with their limbs. You know... hands and (foot/feet).
- Andre: Hmm, so they can climb, hang, and move around with their limbs. I wonder if they can (swim/swing), too. ‘
- Monita: Of course they can. They live near the sea, remember. In fact, look, Bekantans are good swimmers.
- Andre: What? Are you kidding?
- Monite: No. The book says that Bekantans can swim well because they have a skin membrane on their feet and hands like (fox/frogs).
- Andre: Awesome! But I guess because Bekantans live in trees, they (eat/ate) leaves, not fish. Am I right?
- Monita: Yes, you’re right. Bekantans eat almost all parts of the plant. They (consume/consumes) young leaves, fruits, and flowers.
